1 On CDP, TCFD & SBT.

Starting as the carbon disclosure project, the CDP has evolved from a niche reporting instrument to a widely applied standard reporting format in the Paris world. At FutureCamp we are proud to have actively supported this development through using CDP with our clients as a dedicated climate strategy tool – be it as matrix for the implementation of TCFD* recommendations and broader framework for science-based target setting (SBT)**.

2 The FutureCamp expertise.

Our long-standing and comprehensive expertise on climate related issues merges in our CDP consultancy. This broad implementation competence sets us apart from any agency and most other accredited CDP service providers. It builds also on valuable real scoring expertise from the evaluation of over 140 company reports for the CDP until 2015. Our qualified experts support you on all three programs – climate change, water and forest. We are able to combine the skills required for your response strategy in a dedicated team.

3 Our approach for corporates is always tailor-made.

While the CDP steadily became the standard, we have worked together with many of our clients to improve the substance of their reporting. And we continue to do so – accepting that climate change is a long-term challenge. We systematically apply the CDP and the programs around it as a mature strategic toolkit, ready to analyse climate related impacts and to enhance our clients’ climate resilience. The shared success we have with our clients on this avenue of gradual improvement via CDP is illustrated in our track record: Of the 16 German climate leaders on the 2020 A-List we have supported 8, some since many years like Symrise, Lanxess or Thyssenkrupp. In Austria in past years we have supported 4 of the now 5 best scored companies (“A/A-”). In 2021, a year that saw a contraction of the A-List by more than 25% from 270 to just 200, all (!) Climate Leaders who wanted to keep their excellent rating managed to do so with our support.
